

Award-winning Microtheater Performance at Lambuzo

From now until March 11th, you can see an award-winning Spanish micro-theater performance called 'Always On My Mind' (named after the Elvis Presley song) every Wednesday night at Bar Lambuzo, one of our favorite spots in the city. The twenty-minute performance takes place in the downstairs wine cellar of this Andalusian tavern near metros Santo Domingo, Opera and Sol. You can reserve your ticket on Lambuzo's Facebook page for 9pm, 9:30pm or 10pm, for 5€. And best of all, you can grab a drink at the bar upstairs and bring it down with you for the show!

Here's a short video to give you an idea of what the show is about.

'El Secreto de las Mujeres' at Teatro Galileo

One of Madrid's most popular theaters, Teatro Galileo, is putting on a fabulous musical/play full of fantasy that intertwines monologues, dance and music with typical scenes from both sitcoms and musicals.

Enjoy El Secreto de las Mujeres every Wednesday at 8.30 p.m. until April 1st!

'Como si pasara un tren' in the Small Hall of Teatro Español

In March, you can see the play 'Como si pasara un tren' at the Small Hall of the Teatro Español.

The play is about a mother and son, Susana and Juan, who live in a small town. Susana struggles to raise Juan on her own since his father left. Things start to change following the arrival of Valeria, an adolescent and Susana's niece. The young girl was sent to her aunt's house after her mother found a joint in her stuff.
